Cookies and preferences

Understand preference storage and optional map loading.

1. Features in this version

The website has no configured advertising cookies, audience analytics tools or social-network pixels. Fonts, images and institutional documents are local. Hosting infrastructure may use technical mechanisms necessary to deliver and secure pages according to the service provided.

2. Stored preference

When you allow or block maps, the browser stores the kingship_privacy_v1 key in localStorage with your choice and its date. It only remembers that decision for up to 180 days in this browser. It contains no name, email or form report and is not used for advertising. When it expires or is removed, maps are blocked again.

3. Google Maps is optional

The embedded map is requested from Google only after you allow it. Google may then receive your IP address and technical data, use cookies or similar technologies and process data outside Brazil. This website does not request your geographic location: it only displays offices' public addresses. You can read the text addresses without loading maps.

4. Change or withdraw your choice

Use "Privacy preferences" in the footer at any time to allow or block maps. Blocking removes embedded maps and prevents new loads by the website. It does not automatically delete cookies Google has already placed: use your browser's privacy settings for that. If local storage is unavailable, the choice only lasts while the page remains open.

5. Forms and external pages

Form data is forwarded to the submission service only when you authorize and submit the request. Providers' privacy notices explain their own features. When you open an external link, that environment's choices and settings apply. This document and map preferences do not authorize form submissions or advertising. Version dated November 5, 2026.

Online version and documents: https://kingshipline.com/en/cookies/